

Canada markets closed

S&P/TSX
19,942.70
-40.99 (-0.21%)

S&P 500
4,293.93
+26.41 (+0.62%)

DOW
33,833.61
+168.59 (+0.50%)

CAD/USD
0.7487
+0.0007 (+0.10%)

MARKETS LIVE BLOG: STOCKS CLIMB AS TRADERS WEIGH U.S. JOBLESS FIGURES
Markets pricing in 65% chance Fed will pause its rate hike campaign next week

EveningStandard. | Evening Standard

Bring in trust buttons on social media to stop n spreading online, study finds

Anna Davis

Tue, June 6, 2023, 8:00 PM GMT+9 · 2 min read

Adding "trust" and "distrust" buttons to social media sites like Facebook could reduce the spread of online misinformation, (Tracy Le Blanc/Pexels)

Adding "trust" and "distrust" buttons to social media sites like Facebook could reduce the spread of online misinformation, new research from a London university has found.

A study by researchers from University College London found that adding trust/dislike buttons alongside the standard "like" button incentivised people to be trustworthy and led to a large reduction in the amount of misinformation being shared.

UCL's Professor Tali Sharot, co-lead author of the study

TR

1.

2.

3.

4.

5.

published today in eLife, said: “Part of why misinformation spreads so readily is that users are rewarded with ‘likes’ and ‘shares’ for popular posts, but without much incentive to share only what’s true.

“Here, we have designed a simple way to incentivise trustworthiness, which we found led to a large reduction in the amount of misinformation being shared.”

For the study, UCL researchers used a simulated social media platform and asked participants to share news articles, half of which were inaccurate. Some participants were able to respond with “trust” or “distrust” reactions, as well as the typical “like” or “dislike” reactions.

The study found that participants started posting more true than false information in order to gain “trust” reactions. Researchers also found that participants began to pay more attention to how reliable a news story appeared to be when deciding whether to repost it.

Participants who had the option of using “trust” or “distrust” buttons also ended up with more accurate beliefs, researchers said.

Professor Sharot added: “Over the past few years, the spread of misinformation, or ‘fake news’, has skyrocketed, contributing to the polarisation of the political sphere and affecting people’s beliefs on anything from vaccine safety to climate change to tolerance of diversity. Existing ways to combat this, such as flagging inaccurate posts, have had limited impact.”

Co-lead author, UCL PhD student Laura Globig said: “Buttons indicating the trustworthiness of information could easily be incorporated into existing social media platforms, and our findings suggest they could be worthwhile to reduce the spread of misinformation without reducing user engagement.

“While it’s difficult to predict how this would play out in the real world with a wider range of influences, given the grave risks of online misinformation, this could be a valuable addition to ongoing efforts to combat misinformation.”

---

Our goal is to create a safe and engaging place for users to connect over interests and passions. In order to temporarily suspend article commenting

LATEST STORIES

Search Engine Land

Google News Showcase coming to the US and updates to follow tab on Google News

Plus, Google re-announced the Google Reader Revenue Manager. The post Google News Showcase coming to the US and updates to follow tab on Google News appeared first o...

5 hours ago

Myrtle Beach Sun News

What is with all these CCMF tickets for sale on Facebook? Here are the laws

Lots of people are selling their tickets to CCMF online. Here are the laws of resale in South Carolina you need to know

a day ago

Ad • Appngon

Popular Mobile Games You Must Play In 2023

Discover a world of exciting games, from heart-pumping action to brain-teasing puzzles. Get the latest versions of the top games in 2023.

Business Insider

Generation GPT: AI technology will screw over young people by making them lonely

AI bots like ChatGPT are going to befriend us. But because they can't replicate human relationships, they'll also leave us lonelier than ever.

a day ago

Reuters

FBI says artificial intelligence being used for 'sextortion' and harassment

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has warned Americans that criminals are increasingly using artificial intelligence to create sexually explicit images to intimidate and extort...

a day ago

BBC

Instagram hackers defeated by kindness, businesswoman says

A businesswoman refused to pay a ransom after her Instagram account was hacked.

2 days ago

Ad • The Chef Pick

Kylie Jenner Apologize For Her New Self

Kylie Jenner is an American media personality, socialite, and businesswoman. She starred in the E! reality television...

TechCrunch

Google launches new learning and consulting offers help enterprises on their AI journey

Google Cloud today announced an expansion of its Google

Cloud Consulting offering, its service for connecting customers to experts who can help them along their cloud...
a day ago

In The Know by Yahoo

Youtuber compiles 'evidence' to accuse up-and-coming influencers of staging paparazzi videos:

Influencers Ryan and Sammy Elsharhawy — also known as the Halsa brothers — are being accused of faking their social media presences and staging paparazzi photos.

2 days ago

HuffPost

Rep. Marjorie Taylor Greene's Tweet About NYC Smoke Is A Real Doozy

The far-right lawmaker tried to make a point about ... something.

2 hours ago

Ad • Healthy George

Strongest Armies In the World: No. 1 is Not USA

Here's a ranked list of strongest Militaries in the world

The Daily Beast

Tourists Watch Russian Man Get Devoured by Shark on Egypt Beach

Joseph Prezioso/Anadolu Agency via GettyWarning: This piece contains graphic video that may be disturbing to viewers.Tourists visiting the popular Egyptian resort of...

5 hours ago

INSIDER

Clarence Thomas wrote a scathing, nearly 50-page dissent about why the Supreme Court should have

Thomas was one of four conservative justices who dissented in Thursday's 5-4 ruling that backed the Voting Rights Act.

2 hours ago

InStyle

Megan Fox Wore a Plunging Sheer Catsuit to a Machine Gun Kelly Concert in Berlin

Megan's fashion tour de force goes international.

6 hours ago

Ad • Tummy Tuck Hipo

Oldest Stars Who Fans Forgot Are Still Alive

Here are Some Of The Oldest Living Legends Still Around Now

People

Elliot Page Says He and Olivia Thirlby Had Sex 'All the Time' Making 'Juno': 'We Thought We Were Subtle'

The actor wrote in his memoir that Olivia Thirlby was the "first woman I had a suitably consensual sexual relationship with"

a day ago

INSIDER

Arnold Schwarzenegger fought with James Cameron over 'I'll be back' line in 'The Terminator' — until the Arnold Schwarzenegger thought his iconic line in "The Terminator" sounded "funny," and argued with the film's director, James Cameron.

a day ago

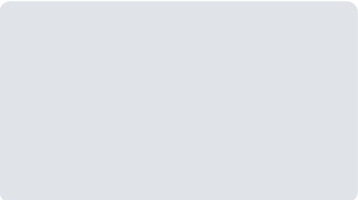

InStyle

Kylie Jenner's White Latex Romper Is So Tight, It Looks Like It's Painted On Her Body
Body-con just took on a whole new meaning.

8 hours ago

HuffPost

CNN Anchor Torches Donald Trump's Wild 'Wolves' Ad: 'Fact-Check Machine Is Broken'

"There are several things in there that would not pass the truth test," anchor John King said of the 2024 Republican candidate's latest spot.

12 hours ago

GOBankingRates

Costco Execs Warn of Looming Recession Because of One Change Shoppers Are Making to Their Buying

In times of economic struggles, Americans tend to change their shopping habits. The "lipstick effect," where people will continue splurging on smaller items such as candles and...

6 hours ago

Cosmo

The big change to Prince William and Kate Middleton's future royal tours

Prince and Princess of Wales will be instrumental in King Charles' plans for future royal tours. But here's why their tours will be shorter than usual.

10 hours ago

People

Golnesa 'GG' Gharachedaghi Says She's 'Cutting Back' on Ozempic After Losing 'More Weight Than I Was

The 'Shahs of Sunset' alum said she now weighs 110 lbs. after starting type 2 diabetes drug Ozempic for weight loss in March

5 hours ago

PA Media: Sport

Rory McIlroy involved in angry exchange at PGA Tour players meeting – report

Players are coming to terms with the shock merger with LIV Golf.

a day ago

INSIDER

Justice Kavanaugh switches sides to throw out racially gerrymandered map in Alabama, just a year

Kavanaugh allowed the Alabama maps, which diluted Black votes, to stand for the 2022 election. Now he says they violated the Voting Rights Act.

5 hours ago

---

